BD EMPLOYEES VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Vincent A. Forlenza: BD is doing this transaction to bring together two great companies to improve a very important process in the hospital – that’s medication management. It’s an area of big concern for hospitals. Both companies have complementary products that can be brought together to simplify this process and improve it. This is a perfect fit. It’s a perfect fit for BD, it’s a perfect fit for our customers.

The second reason is these companies are a perfect fit from a geographical standpoint. BD has invested in a global infrastructure; CareFusion has been very U.S. focused and trying to build out that infrastructure, but this accelerates that strategy for both of the companies. So all of these elements together are very exciting.

Kieran T. Gallahue: Completely agree. This is a great example of taking two very aligned organizations from a cultural perspective. At CareFusion our focus has been on lowering the cost of care while improving patient safety, and doing so in a way to try to touch patients around the globe. This helps accelerate that vision.

VF: Together, we can improve healthcare, both in medication management and in procedural solutions. Both of those opportunities are exciting for BD and CareFusion and within the global context.

This is good for all of us because today we are a stronger company with more opportunity, committed to the strategy to build solutions on the medication management side, in the diagnostics area, and in biosciences. Rest assured that we are continuing with our key programs – our R&D programs, our market development programs – for all of our businesses. We’re just going faster.

We’re going to manage the integration by putting together a small team with executives from both companies. It’s going to be led by a very experienced person, Bill Kozy, our Chief Operating Officer. It’s going to be small for quick decision making to allow us to focus on both of our core businesses – that’s the recipe for success.

The transaction is great for employees. It’s about the opportunity to have a real impact on healthcare, to work together with colleagues who share that same vision. It’s about growth; it’s about building a global leader...

KG: I think Vince's word is spot on – growth. And growth means opportunity for employees. And we are quite fortunate that we've got two teams that are highly aligned from a cultural perspective.

VF: In the short run, BD employees should be staying focused on their jobs and running our core business. This is a very exciting opportunity and we cannot get distracted before we close this transaction.

Both companies have tremendous clinical knowledge and we can bring that knowledge to bear around the globe, whether it's in China or Brazil, in Europe or in the US, and when you bring that knowledge together, we're going to improve health care.
